ELIJAH BOYDEN, Agent.

Marlborough, March 1, 1877.

REPORT OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

In compliance with the laws of the State of New Hampshire, the Superintending School Committee of Marlborough respectfully submit to the citizens the following Report of the Schools for the year ending March 13, 1877.

Your Committee have endeavored faithfully and impartially to discharge the duties incumbent upon them as Superintending School Committee according to the best of their abilities, agreeably to the rules and regulations of the constitution, and the laws of the State.

DISTRICT No. 1.—Prudential Committee, Byron C. Knight.

There was no Summer school in this District. The Fall Term was under the instruction of Charles E. Mason, a teacher of comparatively small experience, but who, notwithstanding, succeeded in having a good school. The pupils appeared to take a deep interest in their studies and improved their time, and consequently made commendable advancement in their various branches of study. The order and discipline which is absolutely requisite to a good school, appeared to be faithfully observed. The improvement in reading during the term was worthy of note. The closing examination proved satisfactory to the Committee. Number of scholars, 10.

The Winter Term of four weeks was in charge of the same teacher, but the scholars did not manifest so much interest in their studies as at the Fall Term, although the recitations in Geography and Arithmetic were very good. Number of scholars, 4.

DISTRICT No. 2.—Prudential Committee, Daniel W. Tenney.

The Primary Department, Summer Term, was under the instruction of Miss Irene L. Harrington, a teacher of considerable experience, and possessing a remarkable faculty for governing a large school of small children. The teacher being a good singer, succeeded admirably in teaching her pupils to sing, as was obvious at the closing examination. Good order prevailed during the term. Number of Scholars in attendance, 42.

The Fall Term of this Department was under the charge of the same teacher, Miss Harrington, who sustained her former reputation as a teacher, and won the love and confidence of all her scholars. A large number of visitors were in attendance at the closing examination, which proved very interesting alike to the committee and to visitors. Number of Scholars in attendance, 57.

The Intermediate Department, Summer Term, was taught by Miss Ella R. Bickford, of Winchendon, Mass., who had taught several terms with success in District No. 3. The school appeared to be under good discipline whenever your committee visited it, and it was evident that the scholars made good progress in their studies, as the closing examination disclosed. Number of Scholars in attendance, 31.

The Winter Term of this Department was under the care of Miss Nellie M. Atwood, of South Acworth, a teacher of considerable experience, who succeeded, as usual, in having a good school. She appeared very ambitious, and took a deep interest in the welfare of her pupils, and thus secured their love and respect. Good discipline prevailed during the term, and the closing examination, which was thronged with visitors, proved conclusively that the scholars had improved their time and consequently made good advancement in their studies. The improvement in Reading was so evident to all, that it received general commendation. No. of Scholars, 41.

Summer Term, Grammer Department, was under the instruction of Miss Nellie M. Atwood. This school registered 37 scholars, 13 of whom studied Algebra. The classes in Arithmetic and Geography displayed great proficiency in these branches, and it was obvious at the closing examination that the school had been a success.

Winter Term, Grammar Department:—Number in attendance 48, under the supervision of Prof. L. F. Hayward, of South Acworth, a teacher of large experience and superior abilities; in fine a wide-awake, enthusiastic teacher, who succeeded in having a first-class school. No. of pupils in Algebra 14; in Philosophy, 7; in Physiology, 10. The class in Algebra exhibited great proficiency in solving problems on the black-board, also the class in Book-keeping showed commendable attainment in this branch of study; the examination in Geography and Arithmetic was thorough, and proved conclusively that the scholars had improved their time, and that the teacher had performed faithfully his part, and consequently the school had been a grand success. The number of visitors in attendance at the closing examination surpassed that of any former school examination in town, there being over seventy-five present, including several old teachers. We think the Prudential Committee were very fortunate in securing the services of such able and efficient teachers.

DISTRICT NO. 3.—Prudential Committee, F. B. Lovering.

Summer Term was under the instruction of Miss Louisa C. Hardy, who appeared very ambitious to have a good school, and her efforts were not in vain. Good order prevailed, and the scholars evinced great interest in their studies. The teacher opened the school mornings by appropriate prayer. The closing examination proved very interesting and satisfactory. Number of Scholars in attendance, 18.

Fall Term was taught by Miss Ella R. Bickford, of Winchendon, Mass., who had taught several terms in this District with apparent success. She had some difficulty in managing some of the scholars, which had a tendency to cause some unpleasantness in school; otherwise the school appeared to be successful. The examination in Geography and Arithmetic was thorough and evinced good proficiency in these branches. A good number of visitors were in attendance at the closing examination, which proved interesting and satisfactory to the committee. Number of Scholars in attendance, 16.

DISTRICT NO. 4.—Prudential Committee, Chas. H. Caldwell.

Fall Term. There was only one term of school in this District during the year, which was under the instruction of Miss Emma M. Lovering, a teacher of some experience. This school was quite small, consequently the teacher had ample time to assist the scholars in their studies. The teacher occupied considerable time in assisting the class in Arithmetic to solve problems on the black-board. This term of thirteen weeks was the longest of any one term of school in town. The scholars appeared to be interested in their studies, and made commendable progress, as was evident at the closing examination. Number of Scholars in attendance, 6.

DISTRICT No. 5.—Prudential Committee, Cyrus E. Hardy.

There was but one term of school in this District during the year, which was held in the Fall, under the instruction of Miss H. Cora Phillips, of Keene, a superior teacher of considerable experience, having taught in some of the best schools in our nearest city. Her method of teaching was excellent, and gave general satisfaction. She secured the esteem and respect of all the scholars, and labored faithfully to advance her pupils in their various studies, with marked success. The Prudential Committee was fortunate in securing the services of so competent a teacher, though at wages somewhat above the average. The closing examination gave good satisfaction to all present. Number of Scholars, 10.

DISTRICT No. 6.—Prudential Committee, Samuel Jones.

Fall Term:—There was but one term of school in this District during the year, which was in charge of Miss S. Lizzie Green of Keene, who succeeded in having a good school. This was the smallest school in town, there being only five scholars in attendance. A good degree of interest was manifested by the scholars at the closing examination, and it was evident that the pupils had improved their time and made good progress in their studies.

DISTRICT No. 7.—Prudential Committee, Willard P. Brigham.

The Summer Term was taught by Miss Helen Hardy. Number of Scholars in attendance, 8. This school, under her judicious management and thorough instruction, made good progress in all the branches taught. Good order prevailed throughout the term. The specimens of Penmanship were creditable to the scholars. Exercises in Geography and Arithmetic very good. The closing examination proved very interesting and satisfactory to the Committee.

The Fall Term was under the instruction of Miss Ellen Taft, a teacher of large experience. The school was somewhat larger this term, and a greater degree of enthusiasm was noticeable. Writing, too often neglected in our schools, received due attention. Map-drawing was practiced in connection with Geography, thus awakening additional interest, and securing thoroughness. Scholars, Patrons, Teacher and Committee seemed satisfied with the work of the term. Number of Scholars, 14.

DISTRICT No. 8.—Prudential Committee, Josiah L. Sargent.

The Summer Term was under the supervision of Miss Helen Chase, a teacher of considerable experience, who had taught before in this District with success. She evidently took a deep interest in the welfare of her pupils, and in return won the love and respect of all the scholars. Good order prevailed, and the scholars made good advancement in their various studies. The recitations in Geography and Arithmetic were of an excellent order at the closing examination. Number of Scholars, 19.

The Fall Term was in charge of Miss Clara E. Hardy, who was not without experience as a teacher in our common schools. She appeared very ambitious at the commencement to have a good school, and the closing examination proved that her efforts were crowned with commendable success. The examination at the close of the school proved the faithfulness of the teacher, and that the scholars had improved their time, and consequently made good progress in their various studies. The recitations and compositions were of a superior order, and reflected much credit on the school. A large number of parents were present to witness the closing examination, thus manifesting their interest in the education of their children. Number of scholars in attendance, 21.

The Prudential Committees have acted commendably their part, in the good judgment evinced in the wise selection of teachers. It is no easy matter to select the right kind of teachers to instruct our District Schools. It is not difficult to find those who are willing to assume the responsibility of teaching; but good teachers, who are willing to spend their time and energy in the training of a school where the number is small, are not easily found.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

CHARLES SMITH,

H. W. HAND,

Superintending School Committee.
